HONGKONG, OCTOBER 2ND, 1888.

WE were yesterday able to make the an nouncement that the attempts made at Ho how and Pakhoi to lavy lekin on transit pass goods have, thanks to the action of the British Consuls and German authorities, eapecially of the German Minister, Herr von BRANDT, been stopped, and that the lokis dues already paid under protest have been refunded. This news is in every sense antisfactory and affords reason to believe that B considerable development of the trade in foreign imports will soon take place in South China. Now that the principle has been so fan established that dues illegally levied have been returned, it is earnestly to be hoped that the transit pass system will not again be allowed to fall into disuse. What is well known; there is no reason why should not proportionately do as much for trade in the South.

At the same time that this news come from Heihow and Pakhoi we learn from our Shanghai merning contemporary the an attempt by an official at Hsiakuan on transit pass goods station has been promptly in the exercise of their electoral privileges bud and has brough down on the offender an official consure That affair, it appears, was due to a blunder on the part of a petry officer, and not to an new policy adopted by the high authorities, and all apprehension as to an interruption of the present course of trade may therefore be dismissed. The incident serves, however, to illustrate the necessity of watchfulness on the part of foreign merchants to prevent the growth of abuses, for once they have been allowed to take root they become precedents. According to the Treaty, goods having paid import duty and transit pass dues, ought to be free from all further taxation whatsoever. It seems, however, that on arrival at their destination they are sub-Museum during the week ended 29th September, jected to what is called loti lekin, or warehousing dues. This tax, illegal under any Resident of Persk, on board, returned to circumstances, is the one that the official at Singapore on the 24th September from Brunei. Although this taxation of goods Larseilles on the 13th Sept., died of apoplexy on arrival is illegal it has been allowed to grow into a custom, and there is no immediste hope of uprooting it. What the amount has under consideration a scheme of tariff reof the tax is we do not know, but it appears prisals, as a counter action for the expulsion of not to be sufficient to materially interfere with the growth of trade. The Viceroy of the two Kwang has been credited with the inform us that the China Shippers' Mutual Comthreat that if transit passes were taken out in his jurisdiction taxes would be levied on the goodson arrival equivalent to all the dues that the 7th instant. would have been levied on uncertificated goods at the barriers on route. A DRASTIC gambling law passed some time ago in the Straits Settlements has resulted ning of November next for Shanghai, where next summer freshets are on, there seems every in what a local paper terms a seeming success, that is to say, there has been a diminution in the number of arrests, but, if our sers will take a cruise down south, touching at ing away the unstable mud on which the contemporary is to be credited, the "gambling has been driven in, but not suppressed." As Penang, Singapore, and Manila, returning to are so impossible to foresee that it is worth a lat 19 and 20 N. Th island partly sank, and was wholly overwhelmed y the ashes and pumice-stone which issued from ts volcano during the violent outbreak of 1888 Three years after this date Dr. Trenb (on June 26. 1885) visited theisland, and as he approached i he found that it was covered with vegetation to the very summit of the mountain. The plants could not have grown from the roots or seeds of those existing before the great eruption, for the toughest organism must have been destroyed by the excessive volcanic heat. The whole island stone from 3ft, to 240ft, thick, Nor coul the vegetation, Dr. Trenb thinks, have been introduced by man, for the island is uninhabited and difficult of access. It mus have been by means of seeds carried thither by birds, the wind, or the purrents of the sea that the new vegetation arose. It consists for the most part of ferns, of which eleven different varioties were found, and of single specimens of blessoming herbs, such as are found on coral reefs that have lately risen above the level of the ses. Dr. Treub has, however, found that the forms were not the first living plants that had found nourishment on the destroyed island. most everywhere there were signs that the ashes and pumice-stone had been covered by a thin layor of alice, which rendered the surface of the suil soft and capable of absorbing water. It is fresh in the memories of all that the College was founded on the 30th August, 1887, and inaugurated at a public meetng, by an address delivered by the Dean, Patrick Manson, M.D., LL.D., on the 1st of October, 1887. It is, however, entirely unneces-ont within its walls. How is this support to be

it would be benefiting both the place and the people to which and to whom they owe their fortunes. It remains to be seen whether such will come forward. I cannot help thinking that when the object of the College becomes generally known there will be many such who will come forward. It is well known of the liberality of British subjects connected with the east that it only requires the occasion to call it forth. I can only hope for the best. While supposing that support from this quarter may fail us, I think the object which the promoters of this purely a philanthropic object, has the Government a right to spend the money of the tax payers?" Now, my reply is that the object is not purely philauthropic. Philauthropy is one of the objects in view, but the results will not be philanthropic only. I have no doubt that i this College is made a success in Hongkong, it will tend largely, substantially, and, if you like, pecuniarily to benefit the Colony. There are several ways in which the institution may be useful to this Colony. In the first place, it is of no small importance that in so large a European community, not to speak of the chinese amongst us, that its medical practitioners should be kept abreast with and in advance of modern science. We all know how our knowledge is apt to get rusty, and it can only be kept bright by continual acquisition. My own bolief is that nothing will tend more to keep the medical faculty abreast and in advance of the age in medical knowledge than the opportuinty afforded in teaching the young. (Applause). In the second place if this College, began in this small way but capable of a great future, should be come a success. I venture to say it will assist the coming a centre of learning for the Chinese and therefore worthy of Government support. But than these. I believe that by the radiation of knowledge from this centre the reflection wil be carried all over China and will render more cordial the relations between England and all his colleagues in the College for his future China, and this must obviously tend to, benefit success. The class of Physiology had much to this important Colony. Therefore for several reasons I think that this institution, if there is anythink like a prospect of permanence, is worthy of all possible support of the Government and I shall be happy when the occasion arises for considering in what form it may best be given. (Applause). I should like to say, though, on the other hand, that unfortunately Government assistance always tends to paralyse to a certain extent. It preven's private benefactors coming forward if they think that an institution is in receipt of Government support. If the support that is required for this institution can be ren dered without Government assistance, so much logy, and they are convinced that this important | the better. "If private benefactors will come forward the Government can still give support in many indirect ways, but failing private of the consideration of the Government whether they should not afford the institution some substantial support. I had intended to refer more particularly to the work of those gentlemen who have so generously come forward and given their services. I find, however, referring to the programme, that that duty fulls to my friend Lieut -General Cameron, who, I am sure, will perform it far better than I am able to. I will only sny that generally I return to them the thanks of the whole community. I am perfectly certain that these thanks are really their due, and if this institution should become the success: we hope to see it, they will deserve the gratitude I am unable to express. And now let me come to the principal work of the day, the giving away of the prizes. Before presenting these prizes I ed these prizes, and also those who have failed to obtain one. The whole of the students here stood up, and His Excellency addressed his remarks to them |. To those who are about to receive a prize let me heartily congratulate you on this success, but let me at the same time say that a this very success, unless you take care, may become a danger. I have seen so many tailures look upon it as their moral duty to extend the in life, from persons who have succeeded in competitive examinations that I feel it my duty whenever occasion arises to give Warning I believe that notwithstanding many good points the members of the Court and Senate of the and the building of war-ships. Those who exceed are art to become sufficient to justify them in the continuence of emblem of peace to this ancient people instead conceited, and think that having so easily won a computition at school or College they can as readily win in the race of life. There can be no preater mistake. The winning of prizes is a grand thing if looked upon as a stimulus to further exertion, but if its action is to paralyse all further exection it is nothing but a carse. Bear in mind that the whole knowledge of the wisest man bears but an infinitesimal proportion to what may be learnt, and that the eleverest, ablest boy who obtains prizes at school or College is only on the threshold of that knowledge. Let these prizes act as a stimulus to further exertions. (Applause). I only wish that my capacity in the One is reminded often of the illustration of the hare and the tortoise. I recollect that when the institution was inaugurated nothing could be more thoroughly to the purpose than the comments that were made on the occasion by our own local press, and I really was in hope that the matter would have been taken up at home long before this, and I think it only wants a little management to bring this institution before the public at home. Of course we are all looking forward to this being a self-supporting institution with a rich endowment fund, able to furnish the necessary staff of teachers for itself. The Government here can do, after all, but little, and naless we do get that public support at home I am afraid that, although I feel sure from the thorough energy with which the matter has been taken up locally and the marvellous efforts on the part of all those concerned. I feel sure that although the institution would be a thorough success in the future, it will take a precious long time unless we get our follow-countrymen at home to support us, and I trust something will soon be whore he has gone on a pleasure tour. done in this direction. Nodoubt I am an old man; but I am a young professor. As for myself I have been so much identified with the College and with the Hobbital that I scarcely need to be thanked for doing my little best in one branch of this work, but I do think Mr. Crow and Mr. Ford deserve your best thanks for coming forward and doing gratuitously such efficient work. (Applause). As far as I am concerned, and perhaps I speak more or less for the large staff of workers, teaching has been a pleasure and a relaxation from other work, which I have enjoyed and which I believe we have all enjoyed. I do not say that it has been all recreation, because we have had a great deal to work no. Moreover no good results can be obtained without labour and perseverance. But we have had our reward, which has been a real pleasure, in the success we have attained. I think it well to state that the rest of these young men who have not come forward to the table for prizes have all worked well, and Austria. their work has been very encouraging to all who have had to do with them. In conclusion I would refer to the Alice Memorial Hospital. We must not forget that the College could not exist without the hospital. To Dr. Ho Kai and those who helped to start that work and to those of the community who have again and again come forward in the most noble way to assist us, and above all to the noble band of workers who have carried it on until now, we ewe's debt of gratitude. We must not forget that the hospital must be maintained in its ful working power in order that the other and wider institution may prosper. Allow me to add that we are a most harmonious set of workers in our Senate and in our Hospital. We have never had a jar. This is due in some measure to the generous way in which the community has treated us, and if the community continues to manifest its favour we shall be kept in such a good humour that we shall never have occasion for any jarring. POST-OFFICE NOTICES.

When Correspondence has been mis-sent or delayed (both of which are liable to happen occasionally) all that the addressee need do is to note on the cover. Sent to _____, or Received at 7 p.m., or as the case may be, and forward it, without any other writing whatever, to the Postmaster-General. This should be acted on the first time cause of complaint occurs; it is s mistake to let such matters pass for fear of giving trouble, a course which generally gives more trouble in the end.

The Festal Guide for 1887, revised to date will be found in the Daily Press Directory. . 385 large edition, p. 701 small edition. This____ s the only authorised complete Summary of Postal information published in Hongkong.
